Security Policy

Before entering certain portions of the site, Users may be required to authenticate their identity. When a User enters sensitive information on the Website, we encrypt that information using encryption techniques such as secure socket layer technology (SSL). To learn more about SSL, follow this link: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Secure_Sockets_Layer. Unfortunately, no transmission of data over the Internet or by other means, and no system for storage of data, is guaranteed to be completely secure. It may be possible for hackers or other parties not under the control of Flex to intercept or access private communications unlawfully. While we strive to protect your personal information, Flex cannot ensure or warrant the security of any information you transmit or otherwise provide to us. Any transmission or other provision of information is done at your own risk.

Additionally, we may also post a notice on or through the Website in such an event. Depending on where you live, you may have a legal right to receive notice of a security breach in writing.

While it is difficult to guarantee that your personal information is secure, there are steps to take which can minimize such risk. For instance, passwords containing uppercase and lowercase letters, as well as numbers and symbols are viewed as harder to be “hacked”. Similarly, the risk to your computer from external attacks by malicious users can be reduced through usage of an active firewall. As a further means of protection, please logout anytime you are finished with a session.

You should also be aware of fraudulent attempts to gain access to your account information, such as “phishing.” Phishing refers to an email that attempts to fraudulently acquire personal information from you, such as your username, password and/or financial information. We retain information for as long as it is needed or useful to provide and improve our products and services, comply with our legal obligations, resolve disputes and enforce our agreements.

Do-Not-Track Signals.

Some web browsers may transmit "do-not-track" signals to websites with which the browser communicates. Currently, there is no standard that governs what, if anything, websites should do when they receive these signals. Flex currently does not take action in response to these signals.
